HEART-TO-HEART TALK WITH TAFT

Illinois Republicans and President in Conference.

EXECUTIVE TELLS OF HIS AIMS

Answers Critics in Regard to Vetoes of Tariff Bils and Arizona Statehood—Business Must Shape Itself by Law.

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 23.—The Republicans of Illinois put aside their factional differences for a day and united to assure President Taft that the Republicans of this state would be solid for him.

The Republican state central committee gave him a luncheon at the Country club here and at the tables were gathered leaders of the two factions at war to tell the president that, though they would fight out their fight to the end in the state, they would not allow it to threaten the solid Republican support of Illinois for him, either for his renomination or re-election.

They laid bare before him the criticisms that some of his acts while in the White House had raised in Illinois, but told him that on sober second thought they had decided to give him their undivided support.

When the state politicians had finished their speeches, Mr. Taft, as he phrased it, "dropped into a little political conversation" and told in perhaps a more intimate manner than he has ever done before just what he is trying to do as president and what he was trying to be.

He said: "I have been the subject of so much comment, I may say of so many counts in so many indictments, that I have classified them and there is one very large indictment against me that I do not know anything about politics and that I am a very poor politician—and I plead guilty.

"Being elected president I took up the discharge of the presidency with certain tendencies, perhaps, I ought to call them, that I had gathered from judicial experience. Of course I made a great many mistakes. I shall continue during this term to make them. That is hardly to be avoided. But there are certain things, certain rules, that it is rather easy to follow.

"One is, that when you have made a promise, it is your obligation to keep it. Now, somewhere in a very interesting speech Mr. Williamson said something about vetoes. I considered with reference to those bills that I was as much under an obligation to veto every one of them as if I had said, when I was on the platform running for the presidency, that I would veto just those bills, for the reason that the whole Republican party had taken the position that it was necessary to maintain the industries of this country by protection sufficient to give them a living method of competing with foreign manufacturers, and the whole party had also said, if you could trust the resolutions of conventions, even in Iowa and Kansas and Wisconsin, that they approved finding out the facts through the best scientific investigation possible by a tariff board as to what the difference was and is between the cost of production here and the cost of production abroad before we passed legislation that might strike down our industries.

"So far as the veto of the Arizona bill is concerned, I just vetoed that because I could not do anything else. I wrote my heart into that veto. I do not wish to disparage the views of others who think that it is possible to have a recall of the judiciary and still retain a decent government, because I have lived too long not to know that people may have very radical differences in opinions and still be within the line of sanity, but trained as I have been as a judge, with a judicial experience lasting nearly my entire life, it seemed to me that the principle of judicial recall would sap the foundations of the government so quickly that soon we would have no government.

"With respect to the trusts, we are in a transition period, in this sense, that the supreme court has decided what the law is and now business has got to square itself with that law."

WILL TEST SUNDAY LAW

Jackson Men, Accused of Operating Pool Rooms, to Fight.

Jackson, Mich., Sept. 23.—War has been declared against Sunday pool rooms in Jackson county. Five arrests have already been made and two of the accused keepers are going to fight the matter out in the courts. Slot machines of all kinds have long been under the ban, but it was only recently that action was taken against the pool room operators.

Three of the offenders have pleaded guilty and paid fines, but A. D. Jenks, brother of Ex-Police Judge Cassius M. Jenks, and Newton Miller have decided to take the matter through the courts. The defendants contend that the "Sunday law" under which the complaints were made, does not cover pool rooms. The trials are set for Sept. 26 and 27.

GENERAL REYES QUITS THE RACE

Withdraws as Candidate for Presidency of Mexico.

NO ELECTIONS IN OCTOBER

Aged Statesman Says Country Is in No Condition for Holding Election and that Maderists Would Not Stop at Commission of Fraud.

Mexico City, Sept. 23.—General Bernardo Reyes, the candidate for the presidency of Mexico against Francisco I. Madero, threw a bomb into the political camp when he anonunced definitely his intention to withdraw from all participation in the election and that he would refuse to permit the use of his name by other political parties.

It is understood that, beside the Reyista party, several others which are more or less supporters of Reyes, will refuse to participate. Reyes says:

"It appears that there will be no elections held in October and for this reason I have decided that my party must not take part." He further declared that President De La Barra is a Maderista and not inclined to give the Reyista party a fair show, but later General Reyes took occasion to deny his remarks regarding De La Barra.

Continuing General Reyes said: "The election would not be legal, as the country is in no condition for holding it. If we should participate the Maderistas would take every means to exclude us from a fair vote. I am armed for personal protection, but do not intend to start a civil war. I am sure if I desired that I could overturn the present government, but I do not wish to bathe the country in blood again. I do not believe it necessary to present a formal petition to congress advising them of my decision.

SAUREZ CLAIMS ELECTION

Much Dispute Over Who Has Been Chosen Governor of Yucatan.

Vera Cruz, Mex., Sept. 23.—Advices from Yucatan say there is much doubt and dispute over the reecnt election for governor of that state, both Moreno L. Canton and Pina Suarez claiming victory. Friends of Canton claim that he was the most popular candidate and that he received a majority of votes. They allege that in certain districts the supporters of Suarez committed frauds in their attempt to elect their candidate.

On the other hand Suarez claims that the result of elections shows that he was the victor by a majority of some 3,000 votes. This claim, however, is generally discounted by the public, as complete returns have not yet been made and it is thought when the returns are all in they will show the election of Canton.

Aviator Ward left Addison at 7:45 a. m., but after going four miles he experienced engine trouble. He descended, the aeroplane crashing into a tree. It was a complete wreck. Ward gave up the contest.

Rodgers' managers figured that with side jumps the aviator covered 208 miles in the day. Rodgers has invitations to stop at Olean and Jamestown. Stops already made included Scranton, Great Bend, Binghamton and Elmira.

"DARE DEVIL" CASTELLANE FALLS TO DEATH AT THE MANSFIELD, PA., FAIR

Elmira, N. Y., Sept. 23.—"Dare Devil" Castellane, an aviator, fell to instant death at the Mansfield, Pa., fair today. He had started in an exhibition flight, and when three-quarters of a mile from the grounds his machine careened, turned turtle and fell on a hillside. The county is mountainous, and while descending toward a valley a puff of wind shot his machine backward into the air and turned over.

QUESTION OF IDENTITY OF RELEASED PRISONER STILL REMAINS MYSTERY

Niles, Mich., Sept. 23.—Whether "George A. Kimmel" is George A. Kimmel remains as much in doubt today as when the released Auburn, N. Y., prisoner appeared in Niles to claim relationship with the family which has steadfastly repudiated him.

It was said this afternoon that the aged Mrs. Kimmel had reported the conclusion that the man was not her son, but later she declared she wished still more time in which to come to a conclusion. Above all she wished to consult with her daughter, Mrs. Ada Bonslett, of Chicago, who was the plaintiff in the suit at St. Louis to recover the large amount of insurance on her brother's life.

It is said that "Kimmel" on his visit to the old home did not recognize the family portraits on the wall, among which was the portrait of George Kimmel. He said he desired time to think the matter over.

"This matter of memory is a strange thing," said Kimmel. "No two persons see the same thing in the same way, no two memories run on parallel lines and the incidents that impress one person do not impress another."

He laughed as he asked what the papers had to say about the "mystery" in which he occupies the center of the state as the man who is puzzling the world because he has not been immediately accepted by all his old friends and his relatives in Niles, as the long lost George A. Kimmel.

Harry Fox re-affirmed his faith in Kimmel today and Eugene Cook of Kalamazoo, but a former resident of Niles, after interviewing him was convinced that Kimmel is the man he says he is. Several more are reported today as convinced, but the general public awaits the final word from Mrs. Kimmel and Mrs. Montague, Kimmel's aunt.

RECIPROCITY DEFEAT MAY BE BAD BLOW FOR PRES. TAFT

Washington, Sept. 23.—The stunning defeat of reciprocity in Canada is regarded in Washington as a severe blow to President Taft's chances for renomination. It is held he will never be able to explain why he rejected the certainty of tariff revision by the democratic and republican tariff reformers and staked his fortunes on the doubtful outcome of reciprocity.

The bald, indisputable fact now is that, after a tumultuous session of congress there is no tariff revision of any kind. Moreover the president is confronted with his vetoes of the wool bill, the cotton bill and the farmers' free list and the division of his own party into the stalwarts and a formidable opposition which has as many heads as the hydra.

Rep. A. O. Stanley, chairman of the committee that investigated the steel trust, who represents political thought on economic reform in the capitol just now, makes the point that President Taft is severely hit because the Canadian past is the only great measure so far linked with his name.

President Taft's friends simply shake their heads wisely and look doleful. They do not dispute the impression that circumstances have largely diminished the chances of Mr. Taft for re-election.

Only such bold economists as Rep. Ernest Roberts, of Massachusetts, declare that the result will help Mr. Taft, but even Mr. Roberts admits that the result will be followed by what he describes as a sagging in business.

Other economists, however, notice that the argument set forth by those who advocated reciprocity is already substantiated by the course of the wheat market. In the United States wheat has gone up and in Canada it has gone down. If Mr. Taft had permitted the farmers' free list to have become a law such a thing could not have been possible, is the opinion here. In other words the very first news that develops on the heels of the failure of reciprocity and the opposition of the administration to the farmers' free list is that the wheat manipulators have been permitted to manipulate the market against the people, while America's Canadian neighbors will have the benefit of the low price of wheat and of the lower cost of living.

State department officials profess to be staggered by reciprocity's defeat in Canada. In the absence of Secretary Knox, however, they are unwiling to predict the next step of the administration.

Here are some of the views expressed today on the situation: Rep. Stanley: "The defeat of reciprocity is a severe blow to both countries. It is due to the fetish of protection which we have outgrown and which Canada has not outgrown. I think Mr. Taft is severely murt politically, because this past is the only great measure so far attributed to him. The railroad measure was passed in spite of him.

"Our inability to trade with Canada on the basis of reciprocity cannot result in depression of business in this country. There is not enough trade involved."

Rep. Roberts, of Massachusetts: "I look to see a scag in business for some months to come. This will not be as a consequence of Canada's action. It will be due to the unrest in politics. Business has already slacked off as a consequence of tinkering with the tariff.

"The result will undoubtedly help Mr. Taft. The farmers have been against reciprocity. Now the farmers will forgive Mr. Taft and will be for him because they believe in him."

Charles C. Glover, president of the Riggs National Bank, said:

"No man in the United States knows why Canada refused the pact. As soon as the smoke clears away Canada's action will not be regarded as unfriendly. She acted under a misapprehension, that is all.

"I do not think there need to be the slightest fear of the effect on the stock market, or on business."

New York, Sept. 23.—Calbraith P. Rodgers, one of the intrepid young aviators who are attempting the coast to coast flight for a prize of $50,000 offered by a well known easterner, had a narrow escape from death in northern New York state when his machine crashed into a tree after becoming entangled in the telegraph wires. Rodgers was uninjured and announced that he would continue the flight as soon as repairs are completed.

LAKE BOATS COLLIDE

Steamer Phipps Sends the Joliet to the Bottom.

Joliet Goes Down in St. Clair River Within Few Minutes After Crash.

Port Huron, Mich., Sept. 23. — The big steamers Phipps and Joliet collided in the St. Clair river off this city early in the day and the Joliet was sent to the bottom.

It was reported at first that sixteen persons had drowned in the collision. A later report was that the number of lives lost, if any, could not be told on account of the panic among the survivors. The belief was that several men were missing.

It appears they tried to pass each other in dense fog. Neither pilot could tell the exact location of the other until the noses of the vessels were almost together. Then it was too late to avert the collision.

The impact was so terrific that big holes were made in the vessels below the water line. A flood poured in and the Joliet went down within a few minutes. The men on board tried to lower boats, but found the steamer sinking so fast they abandoned this plan for safety and jumped overboard, determined to swim ashore if possible.

The Joliet carries a crew of nineteen and has a gross tonnnge of 1,935 tons. It is in the freight service and sails from Duluth. It is a steel steamer and was built in 1890 at Cleveland, Ohio.

The Henry Phipps also is in the freight service and its home port is Duluth. It carries a crew of twenty-four and its gross tonnage is 7,240. It was built in 1907 at West Bay City, Mich.

"IF I WERE IN YOUR PLACE."

"If I were in your place" is the preface to a great deal of gratuitous advice which is seldom worth its cost. It serves to free the imagination. But it beguiles the theorist into imagining that dreams are as reliable substructures as tried facts. It is the condiment of discontent. The childless parent and the unmarried old maid or bachelor can always tell what they would do—so differently than others—in properly rearing children the Lord never has entrusted and probably will never entrust to them.

"If I were in your place and could afford it as well as you, I would spend my time in travel." The one addressed, with his ample means will probably reply, "If I were in your place and had your health and that of your family I would be glad of the chance to remain in your comfortable home and enjoy the blessing of labor each day with the blessing of undisturbed sleep each night."

One wishes he had the aristocratic excuse of going away during the hay fever season for a "good time" while he who is obliged to go away awaits in exile the good tidings of a heavy frost that he may return to his home and hard work.

The trouble with this whole matter is that the fact is that you are not in my place and wouldn't be any happier if your were in all propability. The needed thing is philosophical contentment with what we have—the ability which can be acquired of creating contentment out of the assets of the situation we find ourselves in and continuing to realize on those assets while we mould the situation more to our liking. This is the philosophy which lives most of the time in the present with an eye to the future and an occasional glance backward so that in rowing our course as most of us do, we may keep to the course and make the harbor untimately.

"If I were in your place" is an impracticable unsettling, unconstructive attitude. It should go the way of the cheap novel—up in smoke.

AGAIN, WELCOME TO OUR INVADING HOSTS.

Nature joins with the native in extending a hearty welcome to the student horde so much in evidence at the depots and on the streets today. From many climes and many conditions come the student and the future citizen to commongle with our citizens for a four year perhaps. While not permanent introductions of differing strains of blood to influence permanently our civilization they yet represent a contribution of influence to our social and intellectual atmosphere and in turn are sensitive plates sure to go away with something besides diplomas to evidence their sojourn here. The reciprocal opportunities for wholesome influence from each to each ought to thrill with possibilities. Citizens and municipalities on the one hand has the opportunity possessed by few communities to widen its horizon of service and students to bring to us the good thoughts possessed from other environments. The right hand and the right influence to the right student is our sentiment.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

By W. A. MACY.

BRILLIANT INDIAN MILITARY TACTICS.

At one time during the Black Hawk war a detachment of United States troops under the command of Lieutenant Jefferson Davis, afterward president of the Southern Confederacy, while pursuing the Indians came up to them on the bank of the Wisconsin river. Here the Indians made a stand, and fought with such desperation that they held the troops in check. While the fighting was going on the squaws tore bark from the trees and made little shallops, in which they floated their papooses and other belongings across to an island in the river, also swimming over their ponies. As soon as this was done half the Indian warriors plunged in and swam across, each holding his gun above his head with one hand and swimming with the other. As soon as they reached the island they turned and opened fire on the troops. Under cover of this fire the remaining warriors slipped down the bank and swam over in the same manner. "This," said Mr. Davis many years afterward, "was the most brilliant exhibition of military tactics that I ever witnessed—a feat of most consummate management and bravery, in the face of an enemy of greatly superior numbers. I never read of anything that could be compared with it. Had it been performed by white men, it would have been immortalized as one of the most splendid achievements in military history."

A Catch.

Three girls in white sat under a striped awning on a sun-drenched beach. A young man approached and said, displaying three shells in the palm of his hand: "Girls, how many shells do you see?" "Three," was the reply. "I say there are four," said the young man. He shut his hand and opened it again. "Now how many are there?" "Three," the girls repeated stoutly. "Three." "I say four," he declared. "Will you each give a dollar to the Children's Country Week if I'm wrong?" "Yes," they agreed. "Then give it," said the young man, "for wrong I am—there are only three. I've caught six persons with this dodge this week!"

SCOURGE OF PELLAGRA ALARMS THE WHOLE SOUTH

More Than 50,000 Cases Reported Since Disease First Appeared.

The Most Important Health Problem Today, Says Medical Journal.

THE increasing prevalence of pellagra in different sections of the country is responsible for the editorial assertion in the Journal of the American Medical Association that "it becomes one of the most important public health problems of the present, if not the most important problem, and as such adequate provision should be made for its thorough investigation by federal and state health authorities."

Coincident with the expression of this serious view of the situation comes the announcement from Lexington, Ky., that Henry Garman, a government bacteriologist and entomologist, believes the buffalo gnat to be responsible for the disease. Just how the insect communicates the disease has not yet been explained, but Mr. Garman thinks he is on the right track and hopes that his investigations will lead to the discovery of a cure for it.

"From Kentucky, Tennessee, North and South Carolina and Georgia," writes the editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, "come reports of increasingly numbers of cases, some of them in localities where the disease had not previously been detected. These reports in all probability mark the annual recrudescence of the disease and indicate that it is increasing from year to year, at least in some localities, and at a rate that demands serious consideration.

"The evident increase in the number of cases, the high mortality attending the disease, and the lack of knowledge regarding its etiology and prevention, have created some feeling of alarm among the people of infected localities lest the disease might become widely epidemic.

Reliable Data Scarce.

"Judging from the experience of Italy, such an event is not impossible, since in that country the disease, soon after its appearance, became widespread and was attended by a high rate of mortality.

"Accurate data regarding the prevalence of the disease in this country would at the present time be of the greatest value, but unfortunately these are not available since in only four states is pellagra required to be reported and in only one of these are such reports required by law.

"Were these data available for the period since pellagra was first reported in the United States it is probable that some idea would be gained as to the extension of the disease and some light might also be thrown on the etiology and other phases of the problem.

"No appreciable advances haves been made in our knowledge of etiology and prevention in the recent past. The maize theory of the origin of the disease appears to be attracting less attention on the part of students of the disease. Sambon's hypothesis regarding the agency of flies of the genus simulium appears as yet to have few supporters in this country, although Roberts of Atlanta in a recent paper states that from observations made in his section conditions are very similar there to those described by Sambon in Italy where the disease prevails.

"Alessandrini of Rome, on the other hand, attributes pellagra to a water borne trematude of the genus filaria.

"Neither of these interesting views as to the parasitic origin of the disease has been confirmed. In fact, definite knowledge regarding the etiology of pellagra is utterly lacking, and the problem is one therefore that calls for urgent study and early solution.

Probably Not Contagious.

"Any true estimate of the significance of pellagra in the United States and its importance in future must be based largely on knowledge of its cause. The adoption of adequate preventive measures also depends on this factor.

"The practically universal view of the noncontagiousness of pellagra renders quarantine inadvisable and unnecessary, and so far as known this measure has not been adopted by experienced authorities in their struggles against the disease. That health authorities and physicians generally are alive to the necessity of vigorous action, however, is shown by the interest taken by them in the subject.

"On the other hand, press reports and editorial comments indicate that the public is becoming much exercised over the situation. In an editorial in one of the southern papers the situation in North Carolina is referred to as alarming, and the medical profession is called on to devote more of its time and thought to the problems involved.

"On the whole, the pellagra situation must be viewed with serious concern. The disease has been reported from more than thirty states, its area is extending, and its presence is a menace to the physical and mental integrity of a large number of people."

Reports just received from Augusta, Ga., indicate that in that city at least the disease is almost entirely confined to women. Although the disease is reported to the board of health there, there is no record of a child having had it. One man was stricken with it and died, but there is no other instance of a male having been afflicted with pellagra in Augusta.

On the other hand, some fifty women have been stricken there. Strangely enough, nearly all of these women lived in one ward. Treatment seems to be of little avail, and but few recoveries are reported. Twin sisters died in the Fifth ward of pellagra within a few days of each other.

The board of health of Augusta has taken no steps to fight the disease, the authorities being at an utter loss as to the best course to pursue. Local physicians eagerly take up every new remedy suggested by any medical authority whose name carries weight, but the results so far have been discouraging.

Pellagra In the Country.

In the rural districts of Georgia conditions are similar to those in Augusta. The physicians of the Eighth congressional district met recently to discuss the situation. Those present reported that they were attending more than fifty patients suffering from the disease, all of whom, with two exceptions, were women.

Dr. Roy Harris, secretary of the state board of health of Georgia, who is one of the best known physicians in the south, is reported to have declared that pellagra is not a contagious disease and results solely from eating poisonous foods. He says it is a variety of ptomaine poisoning arising from the indigestion of corn products prepared from diseased grain. This is the view most popular in Italy, where the disease has flourished for centuries.

It is the simple ignorance of the people," according to Dr. Harris, "who should be better informed, that is causing the present agitation and fear of pellagra."

Dr. Harris declares that, although the disease appeared in the south only a few years ago, there are now at least 50,000 cases in the southern states alone. The disease is a most distressing one, causing visible physical symptoms which the layman cannot contemplate with equanimity, while the mental symptoms are such as to require the detention of the majority of the victims in the state asylums. The three state institutions in South Caroline are now crowded with them.

Dr. Harris maintains that the state of Georgia could arrest the progress of pellagra and wipe it out in five years by prohibiting the importation of western corn, which, he says, is badly damaged in the winter and then shipped to the south. He asserts that unless southern physicians can obtain legislative assistance the fight against the disease will be practically hopeless.

FINGER PRINT TEST IN NAVY.

Officials Find a Deserter and Fugitive From Justice.

By using the finger print test the Newport naval authorities discovered that Harry Buckholtz, who had been under suspicion, was really a deserter from the navy, and later it was learned that he was a fugitive from justice. Buckholtz confessed to both charges.

Buckholtz is wanted in San Antonio for hiring a horse and buggy and selling the horse for $90 near the ranch of his father-in-law, Charles Dace, who is well to do and prominent.

Buckholtz says he was drunk at the time. He also says he enlisted in the navy in 1904 and deserted less than two years later in Philadelphia. He re-enlisted in Dallas this year and was sent to the Newport training station.

USED VACUUM CLEANER.

How a Kansas Woman Rid Her Dog of Fleas.

A Kansas woman has discovered what the dealers say is the most novel use to which a vacuum cleaner has ever been put. She uses it to take fleas off her dog.

The woman is Mrs. W. W. Cook of Junction City, Kan. She said:

"I used my cleaner for ridding my dog of fleas. He was covered with them. My husband ran the end of the tube over his hair close to the skin.

"When the nozzle touched a flea he was sucked in. When he got through there was not a flea on the dog."

Talking Canary.

One of the exhibits at the national cage bird show recently held at the Crystal palace, in London, was a canary which can sing, talk and whistle. The canary is the property of Mrs. Ives of Thundersley, Essex, and among its favorite phrases are: "Joey, you are a pretty boy," "Kiss your mistress," "My dear boy" and "You are a dear beauty."

Daily Helps to Health and Happiness

By GEORGE F. BUTLER, A. M., M. D.

The following rules, as set forth in Thompson's Dietetics, are applicable to all cases of dyspepsia and indigestion:

1. Eat slowly and masticate thoroughly.
2. Drink fluid an hour before or two or three hours after meals, rather than with food.
3. Eat at regular hours.
4. If greatly fatigued, lie down and rest quietly before and after luncheon and dinner or supper.
5. Avoid as much as possible taking business worries or professional cares to the table.
6. Take systematic exercise in the open air. Bicycle and horseback riding are the best forms.
7. On rising, cold sponging and vigorous friction of the body are advisable.
8. The bowels should be kept open by laxative foods and fluids rather than by medicine.
9. Avoid too much variety at any one meal. Take meats and vegetables at separate meals.

Fried Onions or Bacon.

As for the report that Bacon killed Shakespeare, a Newton student points out that it is already established that fried onions killed Napoleon.

Intricate Machine.

A machine which sews up the open end or side of a filled bag and knots the thread is the work of a German inventor.—Baltimore Sun.

Not Really Essential.

Agnes, the tenth child, aged six, was a quiet little girl, taking a very serious view of life. She was carried to her mother's room to make the acquaintance of the eleventh arrival, a brother. Her attention was called to the beauty of this gift from God. She looked earnestly at the object of praise, trying to see the bright side of the situation, then said, "He is very nice, but we did not really need him."

Digestion and Assimilation.

It is not the quantity of food taken but the amount digested and assimilated that gives strength and vitality to the system. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets invigorate the stomach and liver and enable them to perform their functions naturally. For sale by Frank Smith, druggist.

How the Big Football Teams Prepare For Hard Season

By TOMMY CLARK.

FEW except those in the game realize what the early days of the training season mean to the football players. While the days are still uncomfortable with summer heat the football player begins the first course in the preparation which is to harden him for the big contests scheduled three months away.

This preparation varies in a multitude of ways. Some combine business and training by selecting a vocation which gives them plenty of hard work in the open air, while others in perhaps more fortunate circumstances train a few hours a day on the outskirts of some seashore or mountain summer resort.

TWO VIEWS OF FOOTBALL PLAYERS TACKLING THE DUMMY.

Under the supervision of their captain, coaches and trainer the more serious work is begun. For the first few days little is attempted beyond the kicking and catching of the football, running practice to improve the wind and endurance of the candidates and possibly an occasional lineup for illustrative purposes with all scrimmage work eliminated.

At the beginning of the second week the half hour of practice is lengthened into twice the time, and, while the rudimentary instruction is continued, tackling, defensive and offensive formations and a little scrimmage work are injected into the training. The mile or more run around the track, followed by shower baths and a rubdown, closes a day's work.

Next the scrub or second team, as it is known, is called into operation, and the practice begins to acquire the aspect of a regular football game. As the players of the two teams contend under the watchful eyes of the coaches the latter point out and rectify errors in form and tactics which the players may develop.

The training table is started, and the rubbers begin to be called into use at the end of each afternoon's work in order to massage away the bruises and strains incidental to the practice.

By the middle of October both the coaches and trainers know the physical and mental peculiarities of their charges and fit the training schedule to meet their requirements, so far as is possible.

The squad of perhaps sixty-five candidates has been reduced 50 per cent by the elimination of those unfit from one cause or another to stand the strain of football play, and the remaining candidates are beginning to be divided into those mystic sections known as varsity and second squads.

Now approaches the period when with the big games less than a month away, the eleven players with their individual ability and playing peculiarities must be welded into a perfect football machine that acts with resistless force at the command of the quarterback

Afternoon practice is augmented by early morning work, consisting of drop kicking, tackling and other features of the play in which certain members of the squad may be deficient. Thus the men who win mention during the premier games of the football season round into form for the struggle which brings victory or defeat.

ALL STAR TEAM PICKED.

McAleer Has Selected Men to Play Athletics In After Season Games.

Jim McAleer, manager of the Washington Nationals, has made arrangements for an all star combination to whip the Athletics into condition for the world's series while the National leaguers are stretching their schedule to Oct. 12. As the American league winds up on Oct. 7 in the east and Oct. 8 in the west, the Athletics will have four days to get into trim for the big event. Sunny Jim's all stars will be made up of the following talent:

Outfielders—Speaker, Boston; Milan, Washington; Cobb, Detroit.

Infielders—Lord, Chicago; McBride, Washington; Chase, New York; Elberfeld, Washington.

Pitchers—Walsh, Chicago; Johnson, Washington; Ford, New York; White, Chicago.

Catchers—Street, Washington; Sullivan, Chicago.

This array of cracks surely ought to make the White Elephants step a few. There are many critics who believe that it was the series with the all stars that enabled the Athletics to win so easily from the Cubs last season. If such was the case it would be well for the National league schedule makers to end their schedule earlier, so as to prevent their American league rivals from getting the benefit of this series with the all stars.

Brooklyn Has Worried Leaders.

That Brooklyn team has been a thorn in the sides of the leaders in the National league race this year simply because it has some high class pitchers who insist on being in form against the teams that are fighting for the pennant. Though down in the race Brooklyn has had something to say which teams should battle for the flag, and to its good work against the leaders the present close race must be attributed.

Girls are languid, nervous, suffer pain.
Women worry, can't do daily work.
Men have lame and aching backs.
The cure for man, woman or child.
Is to cure the cause—the kidneys.
Doan's Kidney Pills reach the cause.
Ypsilanti testimony proves it.

Mrs. Charles Wilkinson, 513 S. Huron St., Ypsilanti, Mich., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Weinmann-Matthews Co.'s drug store, brought good results in my son's case. About three years ago he had an attack of typhoid fever and after that he complained of bachache and other symptoms of kidney trouble. When stooping or lifting, his back bothered him more than ever and often there was sediment in the kidney secretions, plainly proving that his kidneys were disordered. The contents of two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills removed every symptom of this trouble and in return for this great improvement I take pleasure in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills."

TO PROTECT HEALTH OF ALL STUDENTS

Blanks have been prepared by the Normal faculty on which all students will fill out answers to questions this year concerning their health and occupation for the past two years, especially as to how much time they lost from school through illness and from what illnesses.

This movement is a step further toward the protection of students here and will be worked out as carefully as possible by Prof. Bowen, Mrs. Burton and other members of the physical training department. Thorough tests for sight and hearing will also be given. The usual amount of corrective gymnasium work will be prescribed, and then the students who seem to need especial attention will be kept track of. If any student is out of school two days, the case will be looked after, and proper medical care and nursing will be required. Too often it has happened that a student would have recurring short illnesses and neglect them until some deep-seated ill health would result. This is to be prevented if possible.

The directors of physical culture will demand that such students shall drop part or all of college work when they are physically unable to carry it on.

There are 1,500 students, with no residence halls. A trained nurse at the service of students in a matter that Dean Grace Fuller and Physical Director Bowen have urged.

The Normal college has a woman physician to assist Mrs. Burton at the preliminary physical examination of the girl students.
